The screenshot shows the ITInet website interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for ITI.org, ITI Network, Switzerland, My ITI, Home, Global Forum, Document Library, SAC Tool, GOMI, and Photo Album. A search bar with a 'Cluster Search' button is prominently displayed. On the left side, there is a 'Contact Search' section with a 'Find' button and a list of 'Recently Updated Profiles' including Christopher Evans, Dean Morton, Daniel Buser, João Carlos Wanderico, and Adrian Watkinson. Below this is a 'News Feeds' section with several articles. On the right side, there is a 'Latest Global Forum Posts' table with columns for Thread, Category, Posts, and Last Post. Below the table is a 'Latest ITI Announcements' section with 'Entries' and 'Manage Entries' tabs. The announcements include a notice about the public ITI website being available again after technical difficulties and a section for 'Direct link to the ITInet' with a URL and a note about bookmarking it. At the bottom, there is a 'Share your knowledge in the Global Forum' section with a message about interesting threads waiting for comments.

For individual dialogue on a more personal level, the ITInet offers MyITI. Stay up to date with your social network and refresh personal contacts.

MyITI, your personal domain

The screenshot displays the MyITI interface for a user named Thomas Kiss. The page is divided into several sections:

- Profile Management: On the left, there is a section for "Thomas Kiss" with a profile picture and a "Manage your personal profile" callout. Below the profile, there is an "information" section listing details like email address, country (Switzerland), city (Basel), and ITI status (ITI Global Administrator).
- Contacts: A "Browse your network of personal contacts" callout points to a "Contacts" section showing a list of 116 contacts. Visible contacts include Johannes Kleinheinz (Germany), Jay Deagle (United States), Hans-Peter Weber (United States), William Martin (United States), and Cuneyt Dastimur (Turkey).
- Contacts Activities: A "Follow your contact's activities within the ITInet" callout points to a "Contacts Activities" section listing recent updates, such as calendar events and message board posts.
- Wall: A "Stay in touch with colleagues and friends by posting messages on their wall" callout points to a "Wall" section where users can post messages. Several posts are visible, including one from Anthony J. Dickinson and another from Charlotte E. Stibwell.
